AN OLD INDIAN DEMOCRAT DEAD.

Dan Blocher, Who Danced Barefoot With William H. English's Wife.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 27.—Dan Blocher died in Scott county this week. Perhaps his most notable achievement was dancing barefooted with the wife of Congressman William H. English. This exploit brought him wide fame while Mr. English was running for reelection and gave him a national reputation when Mr. English became the Vice-Presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket with Hancock.

The English family resided in Scott county and Blocher was chief lieutenant to Major English, father of William H. English. When Congressman and Mrs. English returned to their country home after the close of a session of Congress in the early 20s, a large ball was given in their honor. Blocher attended but did not dance. Some of the women noticed this and asked him the reason.

"Well," he replied, half embarrassed, "my boots hurt my feet too bad."

He added that if the Congressman's wife were present he would remove his boots and dance. Mrs. English was a Virginia bred woman and was reputed to be as good a politician as her husband. She heard the explanation of the inactivity of the rural political leader, and promptly offered to dance with him if he would remove his boots. Blocher was considerably abashed at that.

Also a full line of Washable Stock Ascots, at 50 cts.

but he accepted the offer, and throwing the boots in a corner, proudly led the Congressman's wife to the head of the bed and danced it through with her.

Blocher was a member of the State Legislature for three terms. He was a rock-ribbed Democrat to the day of his death. One of the great sorrows of his last days was the fact that Capt. William H. English, son of Congressman English, lost the Democratic party and became a Republican in the last national campaign. It is reported that he actually shed tears when Capt. English made a Republican speech during Gov. Roosevelt's Western tour.

Blocher came near deserting his party when the Democrats turned Horace Greely to vote for Greely or to turn from the Democratic party. He had not decided when he went to the polls on election day. After standing about for some time, he procured a Greely ticket, then holding it in one hand behind him, he slowly backed toward the table where the election officers sat. Thus he passed the ballot to them, saying he could not vote. He turned to look them in the face and yet vote for Horace Greely.

Underpriced Sale of Housefurnishings.

The whole broad power of this great Basement Store is concentrated to-morrow in a splendid offering for the replenishment and the outfitting of Brooklyn homes. The Spring Housefurnishing occasions of this Store are famous, not only because of the low prices, but because no matter how little the price everything here is of first quality. To-morrow, however, all records are broken—

Even Here This Sale Was Never Paralleled In Vast Quantities, Fine Qualities and Lowest Pricing.

The Spring readjustment of the household, whether in a new home or in the old, discloses various needs for replacing old with new. Brooklyn housekeepers turn naturally to this Store in such a time and this season we have met your needs even better and more broadly than ever before. We give a list—but it by no means indicates the magnitude of this sale. There are bargains in Housefurnishings all through the Basement.
